COVID-19 SOCIAL DISTANCING WEB SURVEY

David Bloom, David Canning, Mahesh Karra

Version: April 3, 2020

You are being asked to take part in a research survey.

This survey is being conducted to learn about the prevalence of COVID-19 symptoms and social distancing behavior in the United States. We are interested in learning about how education, income, work and flu-like symptoms are linked to social distancing.

You are being asked to participate in this research because you are over 18 years old and are currently living in the United States. Your participation is voluntary and you may withdraw your participation at any time for any reason. You may skip any question you feel uncomfortable answering.

If you agree to participate in this study, you will be asked to take a short online survey. We will ask you a few questions about COVID-19 symptoms and about your age, gender, income, health, work, and your social distancing behaviors. The survey should take less than 5 minutes to complete.

The possible risks of participating in this study include anxiety and stress caused by some of the questions. There is a minimal risk of loss of confidentiality since we do not ask questions that can be used to identify you.

There are no direct benefits to you if you take part in this survey, but the information you provide will be used to protect and promote the health and the social and economic well-being of U.S. residents.

If you have any questions about this survey, you can contact Dr. David Canning at covid19survey@hsph.harvard.edu or Dr. Mahesh Karra at covid19survey@bu.edu

This research has been reviewed by the Harvard Longwood Medical Area Institutional Review Board (Harvard IRB) and by the Boston University Institutional Review Board (BU IRB). If you wish to speak with someone from the Harvard IRB, please contact the Office of Human Research Administration (OHRA) by phone at 617-432-2157 (toll-free: 1-866-606-0573) or at 90
